JEWISH & MUSLIM LEADERS IN ITALY FOR INTERFAITH SUMMIT

Religious leaders gathered in southern Italy for an interfaith summit on challenges faced by Jewish and Muslim communities across Europe.

Delegates from across 15 countries met for the conference organised by the Muslim Jewish Leadership Council. The organisation is an interfaith group of Muslim and Jewish members who, according to its website, seek to promote "intercultural and inter-religious dialogue."

Shechita UK's Shimon Cohen said he was "proud" to be taking part in the event. "Recognising our differences can help us help each other," he added.
