Senior rabbi warns about rise of anti-Semitism in Europe

Associated Press | Published: 10.24.19 , 15:24

The chief rabbi of the main Orthodox rabbinical alliance in Europe says a resurgence of anti-Semitism on the continent "poses an existential threat to the Jewish community."

Chief Rabbi Pinchas Goldschmidt of the Conference of European Rabbis told The Associated Press on Thursday that the receding memory of the Holocaust, rising far-right sentiment and radical Islam are the key factors fueling the anti-Semitic climate.

An attack two weeks ago on a German synagogue was the latest violent manifestation of the trend.
